WAR ON CHILDREN

Ten months ago 3,500 children were sent from the Basque country to England to be sheltered and fed until conditions were better in their home land or until their scattered families could be found. The Basque Children's Committee since then has sent back 3,500 of these unfortunate youngsters. They have rejoined their parents, though not many of them are in their former homes.

There are still 2,000 homeless Basque children who will remain in England indefinitely because their parents either are in prison, are refugees "in the worst bombed areas of Spain," or cannot be traced at all. It has been argued by insurgent sympathizers that all those children should have remained as soon as Franco's forces captured Bilbao. The committee answers that such children, on arrival in Spain, "are immediately placed in reformatories for re-education" according to insurgent ideas. It considers that fate worse than a prolonged stay in England.

What the children themselves think, probably no one knows. It is their tragedy to suffer from quarrels they did not start and a war they cannot understand, to be torn from their families and made to feel the crushing pangs of terror, loneliness and insecurity. That is war.

SERUM FOR YELLOW FEVER

For some time after discovery of the cause and the method of transmission of yellow fever, the only successful preventive work consisted of avoiding the bite of the disease-carrying mosquito. Conditions favoring the disease were controlled as far as possible. Many of the breeding places of the mosquito were destroyed. During an epidemic care was taken to prevent yellow fever patients from being bitten. Houses and rooms of victims were thoroughly disinfected and all mosquitoes found there killed. People in infected areas were taught to avoid mosquito bites, indoors or outdoors. A strict quarantine was enforced against ships from ports where yellow fever existed.

All these measures were useful and accomplished remarkable results. Yet without successful preventive inoculation and serum treatment the war was not won. Now, Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, reports the development of a new vaccine that has proved effective in South America. The vaccination of more than 3,500 people in Brazil and 2,000 in Colombia "gives every indication that efficient protection of populations exposed to jungle yellow fever is in sight," he says.

The vaccination of persons previously inoculated with the living virus have seemed to promise great success, too. Over 90 per cent of the vaccinated persons showed full or partial immunity. Here is conquest worthy of human intelligence.

GOING TO PIECES

The recent news from Czechoslovakia is discouraging to American friends of that country. It seems to be going the way of Austria. The former cohesion against the Nazi minority belonging to the German Sudeten party has disappeared. The Czechs and Slovaks, who together have formed the backbone of this synthetic nation, are pulling apart, with the Slovakian People's Party demanding autonomy for their race and voting to boycott the government's national council. The German Christian Socialists have withdrawn from the government coalition. The different groups are more and more emphasizing their "racial differences," when the only way to preserve the se-curly of any of them is to emphasize their common interests. As a result of this cracking up, the German Nazis, with only about one-fifth of the population, and still a small minority in the national parliament, nevertheless have the largest racial group in that body and are rapidly growing in power. This kind of division means national suicide. It is unlikely that the big liberal powers of Europe will intervene to save the fine little republic if the racial groups believing in democracy will not work together for their own salvation. Nazi conspiracies, very likely, are at the bottom of this suicidal division, but the Nazis cannot be wholly to blame. The quarrelling factions will realize their folly when the Hitler terror comes to Prague.

PRISON PRODUCT

There is plenty of food for thought in the last words of Everett Jones, who died in the electric chair at Columbus, O., last week, after spend 19 of his 33 years behind prison bars. Just before he was strapped in the chair he quietly read a statement saying:

"Oh, I am a product of your prison. This chair before me is society's protection against murderers; conversely, it is my protection against society."

As things are now constituted, this chair is perhaps a necessary evil, as much as prisons are. It is my sincere belief that before many years a more humane method of penology will be evolved. It will be necessary then to lock thousands of men in cells and permit them to rot their days away in idleness.

He had said when sentenced last December: "It is better to die than not be able to live proudly. I'm thankful that the death sentence is mandatory." This doesn't seem like the language of a man, still young, who has spent more than half of his life in prison. Yet it might be. There might be education and mental development, and even moral philosophy, in such a man along with his weakness. Whether he wrote it or some "reformer" wrote it for him, his farewell to the world is impressive. We do handle our criminals unwisely, often unjustly, and the dividing line between them and normal members of society is often narrower than we think.

HEART MURMURS.

As medical students we were taught the location of heart murmurs and whether they were heard best at lower or upper part of the heart. We were also taught to find at just what part of the heart cycle of beats and rests between beats the murmur seemed to be loudest. Thus a murmur strongest before the first beat meant that a certain valve was affected, one occurring with the first beat showed another, and a murmur strongest with the second beat meant still another valve was affected. The murmur, its location, and the period in the cycle of beats was the "important" part of the knowledge to be gained.

Now heart murmurs are important and their location and time of occurrence, as damage to some valves is more dangerous than to others. But, today, physicians have learned that there are other points about the heart more important than murmurs. Dr. E. C. Relfenstein, Syracuse University, in International Clinics, says, "There may be murmurs without heart disease due to anemia, goitre, or exercise, and again serious heart disease may be present without murmurs when the blood vessels supplying the heart muscle become blocked, and when the large blood vessel (aorta), into which the blood is pumped from the heart, loses some of its elastic tissue."

Thus that alarming ailment angina pectoris—breast pang—with the vise-like pain over the heart or under the breast bone and extending over the chest into left shoulder, may have no heart murmur whatever.

Even when heart murmurs are present and are not due to stomach or to lung conditions, but are actually due to leaking valves, it does not mean that the individual is likely to drop dead from heart disease. Sir James Mackenzie, when just an industrial physician discovered that many of the workmen with heart murmurs who had to climb a steep hill to his office were not any more breathless when they arrived than were other workmen who had no murmurs or heart disease. Their hearts were just as strong, as well able to work, as those without murmurs because Nature had provided compensation—added or necessary strength—to enable the heart to do its work properly. Thousands of soldiers with heart murmurs were able to "carry on" during the Great War.

The lesson then is that murmurs not due to heart disease may occur even when due to heart disease are not of themselves dangerous, and the individual will

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

The Story So Far: Judith Goodloe has the code of an old Mary-land family due up to Reuben Oliver has wealth, and the effect of his own making. Desperately loving Judith, Reuben proposed to her when the Goodloe finances collapse. Gary Brent, the man Judith loves, has left her. Marriage to Reuben means keeping the pleasant life she has always known, so Judith accepts.

Chapter 14

Strangers To Each Other

THEY were engaged to be married. They had been engaged an hour, these two who were almost strangers. They had much to say to each other, but they said only that which could not remain unsaid. All the dear foolish incoherencies, the breathless murmurs, the divinely silly personalities, were unuttered. If their hour was less than perfect neither seemed to notice. They were at peace, sitting on the grass in the shade of the maple.

From under long lashes, Judith looked critically at her future husband—at his lean brown hands, his leaf-brown eyes with inexhaustible wells of strength behind them, at his firm mouth with its elusive hint of gentleness—She wondered why she had ever thought him amusing?

"He is wise," she decided, "but he is guileless too. He is being cheated." She said with brutal frankness: "I don't love you—you know that."

"Why—" he came back from some far country, "yes, I know it." He wondered how he could accept it so calmly.

"I—I really don't know you," half apologetically.

"Perhaps, when you do—"

"There is someone else," doggedly.

Silence. A hawk flew over the garden. It cast a dark shadow.

"Who?"

But he knew before she answered that it was Gary Brent. He reflected that he should not dislike Gary, since to his ideology he would owe his wife. But he did dislike Gary. Intensely he disliked him. The convicted adulterer! "I guess most girls imagine themselves in love with Brent. He has the thing women fall for—small talk and flattery. You'll get over it," he gruffly.

"I'm afraid I won't. So if you want to change your mind—"

"Nonsense!" Did he want to stop the sun from shining? Did he want to shut the beauty of his life out? He started to argue with her to convince himself—"You'll be much better off with me. Brent will never amount to anything—you'll see."

"That wouldn't matter, if he loved me," simply.

If anyone had told him in the old days that he could want to marry a girl who did not love him! A girl who was openly pining for someone else. Where was his common sense? Where was his self respect?

"You're really being foolish," she persisted. "You're being a poor business man too—taking us on is going to be frightfully expensive." He turned to smile at her whimsically. "I've always had to put up with you in one way or another, for everything I ever got." He broke off a tiny sprig of the boxwood. It gave out a spicy odor between his fingers. "Life is like that—my life. There's always been a price."

He reflected watching him that so far she had never been caught up in any of his games. She reached out for and took his hand. His fingers closed over hers. The sprig of box lay warm between their palms—a fragrant symbol. He wanted to tell her that all the kingdoms of the world would not be enough to lavish upon her, but the words stuck in his throat, so he just sat there inarticulate and happy than he had ever been in his life.

Buying Her

SHE walked with him to the gates. At parting his arms closed around her. "I'm going to love you so, Judith—be so good to you—give you everything." He kissed her lips upon her red lips and the power of his happiness, the beauty of his passion through her—went surging through her, not the pure ecstasy of Gary's touch, but something that was neither triumph nor humility, but an odd blending of both.

Halfway home Reuben dismissed his car and walked the remaining mile and a half across green fields and through dim woods.

He was going to marry Judith. She beat in his heart like music and ran like wild honey in his veins. The fact that he was literally buying her with a boxwood hedge and sundry considerations hardly registered upon his consciousness.

His mind turned to ways and means. It would take all of $200,000 to straighten out old Mrs. Goodloe's complicated affairs and Jim's mesh of debts. Then, they must have something to keep go-live many years if he lives within his strength and does not over-extend.

PACAMA

Pacama, March 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dudley of Brown Station called on their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Dudley, one evening last week.

Miss Emma Elliott of West Hurley spent a few days last week with her aunt, Mrs. Isaac Whitaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Elliott

ing on. No use to preach thrift and economy to persons who did not know the meaning of the word. "Five hundred thousand dollars will do it," Reuben figured mentally. "I have half of that amount lying idle. I'll arrange for the rest at the bank tomorrow." He tasted in full the power of his money. The taste was sweet.

As he reached his gates Hugo emerged from some bushes and flung himself upon him.

"Well—well! Did you miss me, old timer?"

Hugo whined his delight.

The man felt a sudden need to confide in someone. He went down in the path, took the dog's head in his hands, looked deep into the adoring eyes. "She's coming to live with us, Hugo. The princess out of the fairybook."

His voice was a bit husky. Worriedly the dog licked the man's face unsure whether his master was happy or unhappy. Perhaps Reuben did not quite know either. He did not love him—

Judith, making her slow way to the house with the measured tread of a sleepwalker, was surprised to find that much of the restless uncertainty that had been her portion since Gary's departure, had mysteriously left her. She had saved Gran, Jim, the hedge—that was triumph. She had saved herself from being one of the future fun, boring women, who by inches, craving for a happiness that has eluded them. She loathed that type of woman. Married to Reuben Oliver she would be a busy person. Important. Beloved. Unconsciously she held her head higher.

That evening, in Gran's own bedroom she confided the news to her. Casually, gaily, she confided it.

"Wish me happiness, darling and get ready to go shopping."

Mrs. Goodloe, at her desk, doggedly adding up a long column of figures, as though in the end she could beat them down, smiled absently at the girl from married eyes. "Wait—just a second, Judy—fourteen thousand and twenty-nine plus six percent—"

Playing A Part

WITH a sweeping hand, Judith pushed the paper aside. Captured the pencil. "Didn't I tell you to wish me happiness, young woman? Where are your manners? I'm going to marry Reuben Oliver."

For the first time in all the years old Mrs. Goodloe failed to meet a situation. She sat staring a long moment, then collapsed in her chair, repeating in parrot fashion: "Going to marry Reuben—"

She was still laughing shrilly and crying feebly, when, an hour later, Judith gave her a sedative, tucked her in bed and put out the light. When she closed the door softly her grandmother was demanding, over and over, to know which was preferable—to be hanged for a crime one did not commit or to get a reprieve one did not want?

Judith didn't know the answer. In the morning Amanda was quite herself.

The Goodloe-Oliver engagement was a nine days wonder. "Mrs. John Wallington Goodloe announces the engagement of her granddaughter, who is now being fitted for a wedding dress."

A choice morsel of news. A young beauty of famous family about whom romance hovered with a capital R, was not to marry Gary Brent after all, but Reuben Oliver, a man from nowhere, who had literally pulled himself up by his bootstraps and whose doubtful mill was grown quickly and by devious ways.

Almost immediately Goodloe's Choice took on new life. Gay house parties—one after the other. Guests arriving at all hours, departing at all hours. Reuben's shining cars taking them thither and yon—to the city, to shops, to theatres, to Gibson Island where his yacht waited to steam down the Chesapeake. The nights—great golden moon, shimmering sheet of water—were made for romance, music, laughter and through them all danced Judith, a stranger. Not the old reckless, gipsying, unthinking Judith, but a poised, careful person, an actress who had stepped out of the shadows, consciously bending all her efforts to give a good performance—that of happy fiancée to an important man.

Gary, the old longing, were pushed into the background. All day and far into the night there was never a minute in which to think. She gave such a clever imitation of perfect happiness that even Reuben was deceived.

"She's forgotten Brent already," he gloated. "She loves me."

And that was as it should be. He felt not the slightest inferiority where Gary was concerned. He was a better match for Judith than Gary Brent with his tumble-down old house, his mouldy furniture, his lack of ambition—Gary accepted his poverty with the same unaccepted invitations. "I'm a go-getter—a better man."

Tomorrow: Bad news for Reuben.

COMPANY FOR DINNER!

Woolcott Sits for Portrait by Melik

New York City, March 29—Alexander Woolcott rendered renowned journalist and critic posed for his portrait by Soss Melik, in his New York apartment, last Saturday afternoon. The artist has depicted Mr. Woolcott in the journalist's usual conversational mood, serving as the chief attribute in interpreting his personality. Vividly characteristic of Mr. Woolcott's inquisitive and witty demeanor, Soss Melik in his portrait has somewhat lifted the brows and given the eyes a special spark that has charged the entire picture with a talkative, rather than a silent Alexander Woolcott.

Present during the making of Mr. Woolcott's portrait were his close friends, leading writers, publishers and actors, among whom of particular note was George Backer. All of these friends were admitted into the bedroom where because of a special type of light for the portrait was in the making. Attired in a comfortable robe Mr. Woolcott freely conversed with everyone present, dictated messages to his secretary, smoked cigarettes and carried on the plans for certain plays that are to be staged in New York and Hollywood. To record Alexander Woolcott as he really is, the artist has found it necessary to portray him in exactly such a setting and in conversational mood. In consequence the picture is living with that Woolcott enthusiasm and excitement.

Great Dramatic Critic

Alexander Woolcott was born at Phalanx, N. J., January 19, 1887. In 1909 Hamilton College bestowed upon him the Doctorate in Philosophy and LHD in 1924. He has performed notable post-graduate work at Columbia University. Mr. Woolcott's greater fame has been achieved as the dramatic critic of The New York Times from 1914 to 1922, and then as the dramatic critic of The New York Herald-Tribune as well as The New York World. Two years of his career were spent in the A.E.F. including one year of memorable service given to the editorial council of "The Stars and Stripes."

Wrote Many Volumes

Mr. Woolcott is the author of countless critiques on the theatre, arts and other books. Among the more notable ones are: "Mrs. Fiske—Her Views on Acting, Actors and the Problems of the Stage"; "The Command is Forward"; "Shouts and Murmurs"; "Mrs. Dickens Goes to the Play"; "Enchanted Isles"; "Going to Pieces"; "Two Gentlemen and a Lady"; "While Rome Burns"; "The Woolcott Reader" and others. His talent for the stage has become nationwide on the strength of his portrayal of Harold Sigrist in "Brief Moment" given at the Belasco Theatre in New York in 1931. Known to radio audiences as the "Town Crier" Mr. Woolcott was for Columbia Broadcasting Company.

To Visit Kingston

On his way to his summer home, Alexander Woolcott has made arrangements to stop in Kingston for the day as the guest of Soss Melik. An ardent admirer of paintings Mr. Woolcott has expressed his desire to see the artist's recent canvases and comment upon them.

Three members of the Bethany Chapel group gave a scripture dramatization. Miss Roosa presided, and Vice President Henry P. Righney spoke on "Christian Love." May 29 is the date for the third meeting, but no place has been designated. Any society wishing to entertain the county group on May 29, may communicate with Miss Roosa, New Paltz.

Convention and Contest

The 1938 Empire State Christian Endeavor Convention is June 30 to July 3 in Brooklyn, home of State President Howard G. Launbach. A state snapshot contest announced previously, will be held. Information may be obtained from Constance W. Cartmel, Portsmouth Apts., Forest Hills, L. I.

St. Patrick's Party

Miss Roberta Hotelling, Port Ewen Society secretary, writes that her group held a very successful St. Patrick's party on March 17. Entertainment was furnished by members of the Society, refreshments rounding out the evening's program. Neighboring Christian Endeavor Societies were invited to this party, swelling the attendance to 60.

Flatbush Meeting

Sidney Pearson led the Flatbush Society discussion on "World Peace," Sunday evening. Although the attendance was rather small, those present held a very interesting discussion.

Annual Dawn Service

The Rev. George Berens of Port Ewen will be the speaker for the fourth annual Easter Dawn Service of the Church of the Comforter Christian Endeavor Society. This service will be held in the church auditorium, Easter Sunday morning at 7 o'clock. The monthly business meeting will be held Friday evening, April 8. First Dutch Program

Sunday, March 27, the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Dutch Reformed Church held an interesting discussion on "Is Your Home Life Happy?" A short business session followed. An attendance contest is being held with the society divided into two teams headed by Marion Skeetec and James Little. At the end of the contest, the losing team will hold a party for the winning side.

New Paltz Discussion

"Success" was the topic for discussion at the meeting March 20 of the New Paltz group. Doris Corwin was the leader. This society is planning an old-fashioned hymn-sing in the future. The meeting was held at the home of Ralph Johnson, and was a song service. The social committee served refreshments.

Presbyterian Meeting

Sunday evening the Christadelphians of the Christian Endeavor Society representing the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street, assembled to hear "The Great Specimen" by Dorothy Kopt. Exactly 28 members and friends were on hand to enjoy one of the most interesting meetings since the club's organization. On Monday evening, April 4, this society will be the guests of the CE members at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church for a social. All members of the Presbyterian Society who were not at Sunday's session and would like to attend this visiting society are requested to contact Marian DuBois, Dorothy Webster, Donald Van Gaasbeck, or Jack Decker. During the notice period, word came from the Rev. Mr. McVey that the Christadelphians will sponsor "Pierce, the Magician," at the church in the future. Friday a group of the local CE members from this church will attend the supper-conference at the Highland church. This is for the young people, and the Rev. Frederick Thom, secretary for Young People in the Board of National Missions, will speak and show interesting motion pictures. This is sponsored by the North River Presbytery. The usual every other Thursday social for this club will be held on Wednesday of this week due to the congregational meeting which will take place this Thursday at 7:30. The committee in charge promises another enjoyable program as was experienced at the St. Patrick's day meeting.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you bustle into New El Chico about midnight you are very likely to find yourself gazing at a cock fight, and it may be fortunate enough to be sitting with Benito Collada who are in for a very interesting evening.

Collada was once a lieutenant under Pancho Villa and he is among other things, the owner of the El Chico, which is most assuredly a grande among Spanish restaurants in Manhattan.

Each year about this time he departs on a leisurely talent hunt, combing the concert halls of Spain and the nightclubs of Mexico. This is why his revues are a mélange of Spanish dances, songs, guitar recitals, and aristocratic Spanish entertainment world. But though they frequently are unable to speak one word of English, they are top-flight artists and invariably graduate to the Met ballet or the conservatories.

BEING an impulsive fellow with a lively imagination, Senor Collada made a hasty pilgrimage to Cuba and returned with a double brace of fighting cocks. These were the champions of the Havana pits and their spurs were like surgeon's scalpels.

Mindful that cock fighting is illegal in this country, the imaginative Benito drew his colleagues into a huddle and arranged with a cracker-jack floor show number. A couple of clowns appear on the floor with a rooster in their arms. When they see each other (the roosters, that is) their desire for mayhem knows no limitations. After their rage reaches the saturation point a third clown arrives with an artificial game cock that is wound up like a toy and permitted to hop about the floor. One of the cocks, usually the one that seems the angrier, is tossed free and he promptly overwhelms his phoney antagonist, spurring him unmercifully and winning a splendid victory. After this mechanical rival is vanquished the victor is so pleased with himself he stands about like an European dictator who has successfully engineered a purge.

OCCASIONALLY the mechanics of the show are varied and a rubber balloon in the shape of a game cock is tossed into the pit. The enraged battler, not realizing he is coping with thin air, attacks the new comer and smother him out of existence. Suddenly there is a loud explosion, leaving a mighty puzzled rooster gaping and wondering if he hasn't made a mistake in leaving the barn yard.

Note: Senor Collada's fighters work only every other week. There are four of them and they spend the off week on a farm in Connecticut.

Sundown Stories

The Jaguar

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

NEXT Willy Nilly stopped off to have a talk with the jaguar. He was not unlike the leopard but he had larger spots and also he was bigger and stronger in appearance.

"Do you come from Asia or Africa?" asked Willy Nilly.

"Neither," said the jaguar. "Guess again."

"From South America?" inquired Willy Nilly.

"Right," answered the jaguar.

"You look somewhat like the leopard," said Willy Nilly.

"In South America they call me the tiger, but members of my family have traveled in the United States too—not in a show but roaming at will," the jaguar said.

"What do you enjoy most?" Willy Nilly asked. The jaguar did not seem particularly interested in talking, in fact he did not seem very much interested in anything.

"Climbing," said the jaguar. "All the members of my family are strong, splendid climbers. You can see what a strong foreman I have?"

Willy Nilly nodded.

"I'm not very sociable, very friendly," he continued. "It was as Willy Nilly had thought. 'I suppose you'd say I could have a better disposition if I tried—but I don't try—and so I haven't a better disposition.'"

"Tell me what you remember of your home," urged Willy Nilly, thinking that might make the jaguar feel in a better frame of jaguar mind.

And at once it seemed to do so. Only there was a wild, hunting look in the jaguar's eyes.

IT'S ODD

But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(AP Science Editor)

New York—It looks as though astronomers may have to apologize to the stars for some of the names they have given to majestic celestial bodies.

Take the Tarantula. It is a faint haze of light, seen above the region of the South Pole. Years ago, telescopes showed it to be the kind of a blaze of light known as a nebula.

The shape was that of a tarantula, hence the name. It was at first believed to be just another bit of the Milky Way, quite detached.

But now it is known to lie a million light years beyond the Milky Way. It's diameter is so vast that light takes 600 years to cross its face.

The Tarantula is the biggest and most magnificent mystery of the skies. It is apparently a gigantic, luminous gas pocket. Bigger telescopes may show the spider-shaped creature to be composed of stars.

But at present Tarantula classifies with the famous nebula in the constellation. The Orion nebula is one-hundredth the diameter of the Tarantula. If the big spider were in Orion, in the position of the present nebula, it would give the earth a light like moonlight every night it was above the horizon.

Wild flowers soon will be here. Let us, this Spring, be content with admiring them and not pull them out by the roots and cause their extinction. Others passers-by will be able to admire them if we leave them alone as we should.

HOLLYWOOD Sights and Sounds
By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The colony's getting to be a real family-minded place, even on the screen. Several studios, after looking at what "The Jones Family" has done for 20th Century-Fox, already have chimed in with parallel fire-side groups. And before long we expect all the lots to have their individual version of those versatile, problem-beset Joneses.

Mother—With food prices so high, don't you think it a bit extravagant, Junior, to eat both butter and jelly on your bread at the same time?

Junior—Why so, Mother Dear, I think it is economy. You see the same piece of bread serves for both.

Life.

Life is composed of a great many things—
Happiness flying on gay silver wings,
Sorrow that hovers and lies like a pall,
Agony come at some time to all;
Love that endureth mayhap but awhile,
The touch of wee fingers, a baby's sweet smile;
Heartbreaks a-plenty, and rivers of tears
To carry us onward down through the years.
Hope we have always, and peace but a day,
And then the last call, for this is God's way.

He was a new resident in the block of flats, and at one in the morning, just as he was passing his door, a woman rushed out, attacked him, scratched him, tore his hair, and left him almost a fatal wreck. Suddenly the woman exclaimed:

Woman—Oh, dear, but I'm sorry—I thought you were my husband. I am so sorry.

Victim—You ought to be. I'll have to go through this again when I get to my own apartment.

In business a man usually starts at the bottom and works up, devoting years of time and labor in learning the business before he is promoted to an executive position. But in our government a man is selected for his party loyalty, given an important position regardless of his ability and qualifications and then we wonder why things get in such a mess in Washington.

A five-year-old boy who dearly loved his grandmother would arise in the early morning so as to eat breakfast with her. One morning, he thought it was rather gloomy and said to his grandma:

Boy—Turn on the electric light, grandmother dear.

Grandmother—Oh, I guess we can see without it.

The little fellow walked into the corner and his grandmother heard these words: "Dear God! Make it dark, so grandma will have to turn on the light."

A lot of people in every community need to learn how to read and how to hear correctly. A good many false rumors are started by people who half read an item or hear only a portion of a conversation. They put two and two together and make a hundred.

The Morning After.
I'm quite well, thanks, and wide awake.
Last night was rather tame, using copper cents for stake.
We played a quiet game;
We ate some cake, we drank some milk,
We made a Good Luck wish.
Today we feel as fine as silk—
The same to you, poor fish!

BROADWAY: "Baroness and the Butler". One of those modern fairy tales of a wealthy and beautiful girl who falls under the spell of a suave and intelligent butler is the idea behind the sometimes humorous and often timesome feature on display at the Broadway. The show stars William Powell and the European Annabella and features Helen Westley and Henry Stephenson.

Here is an exceptional picture taken with careful exactness from the successful stage play of the same name and this sordid drama of the poor who live on dead end streets of New York is an eye opener from the standpoint of economics, sociology, human interest and entertainment. More Room Given Ulster County Farm Bureau in Office

The Ulster County Farm Bureau office has been moved—but only across the hall, to the east side of the county building on John street—where the office of the Ulster county agency of the State Charities Aid Association, in charge of Miss Katherine M. Murphy, has been located.

The Farm Bureau has additional room in the new quarters, which was greatly needed. There are two office rooms, the front one occupied by the clerical staff and the adjoining one accommodating County Agent Albert Kurdi and his assistant, Cyril G. Small. At the rear and taking up the remainder of the east side of the building is a good sized room, used when needed as a meeting room and otherwise available for display of various pamphlets and reading matter on agricultural subjects of all kinds, of which the Farm Bureau carries a wide assortment.

The new offices were formerly occupied by the city laboratory before it was moved to its own building near the city hall.

Miss Murphy is occupying the large office vacated by the Farm Bureau.

Flute Was Used by Early Hindus, Chinese, Japanese

Instruments of the flute type appear to be of very ancient origin. The Hindus, Chinese and Japanese claim to have had them as far back as their civilization can be traced, and such instruments were also known to the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans. The first western trace of the transverse flute, notes a writer in the Detroit News, is found in a German manuscript of the twelfth century, the "Hortus deliciarum" of the Abbess Herrad von Landsberg.

The oldest form of the English flute had seven holes, which could be stopped by the fingers, but had no keys. This instrument was in general use until about the beginning of the eighteenth century, when it was replaced by the German flute, an instrument over two feet long, which had six finger holes for the normal tones and from six to twelve keys for the semi-tones. Improvements made in the middle of the Nineteenth century by Theobald Boehm, a German, working with Gordon, an Englishman, enabled the player to produce music on any key with all the chromatic intervals. The chief improvement was a system of keys permitting several holes to be closed at the same time with one movement of the finger.

First Use of Gunpowder Is Credited to Chinese

The Chinese are generally credited with being the first to use gunpowder, not only as an explosive, but also as a propellant for missiles, although no definite date for the earliest use can be given, states a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It was earlier than 618 B. C. There is a record of a cannon of about that date, inscribed "I hurl death to the traitor and extermination to the rebel." It seems not to have been a new thing then.

European peoples may have heard of firearms before the Ninth century, but the first account of the use of cannon in the western world is by troops of the Byzantine Emperor Leo in that century.

In the Twelfth century, the Christians and Moors used artillery in their wars in Spain. Improvements were made in gunpowder in 1320, and cannon of small bore appeared soon afterward in the armories of all European nations. This new element of war speedily assumed a most important part in continental questions, and from that day forward the development of firearms has gone on.

Odd Tree in Jamaica Is Called "Woman's Tongue"

The "Woman's Tongue," which grows in Jamaica, British West Indies, is a strange, podbearing tree unlike anything in northern climes. These pods, which are reddish-brown in color and nearly a yard in length, are given their picturesque nickname by the natives because the seeds are loose in the pod and can be depended upon to rattle constantly when stirred by gentle breezes, notes a correspondent in the Los Angeles Times.

Some 2,100 varieties of plant life are to be found in the island, so that it is referred to as the "botanical garden of the New World."

Pimento and annatto are prominent among the island's products—but pimento is not what the American housewife knows by name, being the common all-spice, the berries of which grow in clusters on trees some thirty feet tall.

When harvest time approaches, before the berries are fully ripe, a small boy clambers to the top of the tree, breaks off the ends and throws them to the ground, where the berries are gathered up like coffee. Annatto is a reddish-berry which, when boiled, yields an oily extract used as a dye.

Jamaica ginger grows abundantly in patches on the red hillsides. The plant somewhat resembles the currant-bush, but only the root is valuable, the tops being crushed and used again as seed. A good yield, Jamaicans say, is 2,000 pounds of ginger to the acre.

Sophomores Are Worst College "Class Cutters"

Troy, N. H.—Sophomores are the greatest offenders in "class cutting" at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Dr. Ray Palmer Baker, assistant director, reports.

"Generally speaking," he said, "the freshman is too timid to risk it, the junior feels a little too grown up, and the senior, now deeply in love with his alma mater, sees his last year passing altogether too fast to deny her any time."

A "followup system" which stops cutting before it becomes a habit has kept absenteeism at an unusually low average at R. P. I., Dr. Baker announced.

Avenues Of Fashion with Esquire AND TALKS ON MATTERS MASCULINE More Stylish Raincoats for Spring

Although spring is probably the most welcome season of the year, you have to be prepared for some of its less pleasing aspects. One great disadvantage of spring is that even on the sunniest days it is liable to rain at any moment, and for an indefinite length of time.

A good raincoat is an absolute essential if you want to preserve your health and the appearance of your clothes through the spring. Illustrated here are three models of raincoats, all practical and all in good taste.

The one on the left is a raglan sleeve coat with a military collar and slashed pockets. With it is worn a semi-Tyrolean hat. The center coat of the group is a coaching coat. It is cut very full and has large pockets. It is a single breasted model and comes slightly below the knee.

The third coat is a double breasted raincoat in an ulster model. This has raglan sleeves and a generous collar to turn up in case the rain gets really heavy.

Comfort Keynote for Spring Hats

Lightweight Felts Featured for Mild Days

Now that the radiator no longer looms large in our daily life, the heavyweight hats of winter are put aside with a sigh of relief and well-dressed men turn to the lightweight smart felt hats suitable for spring wear.

One of the best looking of these hats is the cavalier hat. It got its name from its resemblance to the dashing hats of the ancient cavaliers of England; an illustration of it appears on the large head in the center. The hat is made of soft lightweight felt and has a narrow band. The brim has a pronounced curl and should always be worn turned up.

More conservative is the low crown wide brim hat with the welt edge. This hat is always worn with the brim snapped down and is an excellent country hat.

The cap, too, is winning increasing favor for country wear. It may be worn with a one-piece top as illustrated at the left, or in a new small varsity shape that has seven pieces and a button in the center.

Tyrolean and semi-Tyrolean hats are seen more and more on well-dressed men. The model in the lower left-hand corner of the illustration is a semi-Tyrolean hat with a tweed band. These hats look best in shades of brown and green.

For more formal town occasions as well as for wear with the dinner jacket the black or midnight blue Homburg is recommended. This hat is becoming to most men, and may be worn with semi-sports suits as well. It is also appropriate in shades of brown or grey.

World Worker Speaks For the W. C. T. U.

An inspiring meeting in the interests of temperance was held last Thursday evening, March 24, in the Clinton Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, when members and friends of the Kingston W. C. T. U. were privileged to hear Miss Flora Strout, world organizer for the W. C. T. U.

The program opened with a worship service led by the Rev. Howard D. McGrath, pastor of the church, assisted by Mrs. Edna Rignall, Mrs. Arthur Ellison and Harold Canfield, whose splendid numbers were much enjoyed.

Miss Flora Strout was then introduced by Mrs. George Shultz, president of the local union. Miss Strout is a woman of dynamic and gracious personality, and she sounded a note of high courage as she told of the beginnings of her building of a temperance program in Brazil. She found the Brazilian people very gracious and appreciative of her work. Miss Strout said: "The American ambassador gave me a welcome reception, inviting the outstanding ladies of the Brazilian and foreign communities. He made the first contribution to the work, entertained the first executive committee meeting and also the first annual meeting."

A Brazilian lady of great distinction, a daughter of a count, Mme. Dona Jeronyma Mesquita, in receiving Miss Strout, told how glad she was that Miss Strout had come to them with the much needed temperance program. Dona Jeronyma accepted the presidency of the new union, and is still leading the work forward in a courageous, faithful and influential manner.

The address was remarkably informing as to Brazil and the promise of a vast field for enlightening that people behind this social reform.

The meeting closed with prayer by the Rev. A. J. Carroll.

Orpheum Theatre Shows Catholic Charities Film

The film, Catholic Charities in Action, will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre on Wednesday. This showing is in conjunction with the Catholic Charities annual appeal. Under the leadership of Cardinal Hayes this organization has been collecting funds for the last 18 years to relieve the distress of countless thousands of individuals. Each year a million dollars is raised, and through 250 agencies in every field of social service this work of mercy is carried on. Throughout the Archdiocese of New York, some 10,000 workers are soliciting funds for this necessary and praiseworthy work.

The motion picture, Catholic Charities in Action, depicts in an interesting manner some scenes of the various activities of this organization. The picture will be shown at all performances on Wednesday at the Orpheum Theatre.

Baptist Men's Club Host to Newburghers

At the regular monthly meeting of the Albany Avenue Baptist Men's Club, 28 members of the club of the Grace Methodist Church in Newburgh were guests of the Kingston aggregation.

Following a brief business meeting, the Methodists, softball champs of the Hill City, took over their hosts in three games of softball, 7-5; 8-7; 4-2. Table tennis was enjoyed by those not playing softball, and music was furnished between games by Ernie Gardner, accordionist, and Uman Odell on the guitar.

After refreshments, the Newburgh club left for home, expressing thanks to their hosts for a good time, and inviting the Kingston men to visit them at the Grace Methodist Church.

Knitting by Women on Juries Barred

Albany, N. Y.—Women jurors will not knit in his court, Supreme Court Justice Francis Bergen has warned.

"It would be distracting to other jurors, the witnesses and to the judge," he explained.

He added that "women have as good judgment as men and sometimes better, and, therefore, should not fear approaching the job of jury service, which has been a sanctuary for men for centuries."

Turbi Inspires Young Musicians

Musical people of this community will be interested to know that Mrs. Baldwin Allan-Alten, wife of Baldwin Allan-Alten, a native soloist of the Ionian singers who gave the first co-operative concert of this season, acted as manager of 306 boys and girls of the chorus of the New Jersey All States Symphony Orchestra and Chorus at the concert given last November by that orchestra at the auditorium at Atlantic City. This concert was part of a program given by the Department of Music of the New Jersey Teachers' Association, when it was conducted. Turbi will appear in Kingston on April 4, as a soloist.

In writing to friends in Kingston, Mrs. Allen said that she would never forget the experience, as Turbi was simply marvelous with the students.

During an intermission on the program, Mr. Turbi was presented with a handsome leather music case by the members of the orchestra and chorus. According to the "Atlantic City Press," in acknowledging the gift, the conductor told his charges how honored he was in having been asked to lead the concert; what excellent collaboration they had all been from the beginning; and that their performance was almost professional in quality. Then turning to the listeners, Mr. Turbi asked them how they had enjoyed the concert. The response was tremendous. He told them that what had been heard was not of his making, but of the task of fashioning an orchestra and chorus from the various high schools of the state of New Jersey.

The program included Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," the "Toy Bios" overture by Mendelssohn, Cesar Franck's third movement of his Symphony in D Minor, Bach's Choral Prelude, "A Mighty Fortress" for orchestra and chorus and Wagner's overture to "Die Meistersinger." For the chorus were songs by Mozart, Brahms and Gretchen.

Turbi will again conduct this massed high school orchestra and chorus of the state of New Jersey next November.

If there are advanced piano students or piano teachers who would like to have a folder showing Turbi's hands as shown when he was playing as well as his picture, they may be had for the asking at the City Library as long as they last.

Apple Recipes From the Nation's Best

(In conjunction with the festival)

Nell B. Nicholas sends the following four recipes suggested for March meals. The recipes were tested in the Home Service Center of the Woman's Home Companion.

That Different Touch

1. Cook apples, quartered, in orange juice to serve with duck, in pineapple juice with pork dishes. 2. Baste lamb roast with French dressing. 3. Dip fillets of fish in white wine and egg white when frying in deep fat. Seasonable Salad

Mix mayonnaise with double its amount of buttermilk, seasoned with onion, lemon juice, salt, pepper and paprika. Use to toss salad of lettuce, cabbage and long strips of unpeeled red apples. Add chopped salted peanuts if desired.

Meringue

Bake apples with a little brown sugar until nearly tender. Pour off juice and cool; top or cover with meringue to which 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind is added. Bake in slow oven, 200 degrees F., until delicate brown.

Simple and Good

Line a bowl with slices of buttered bread, fill with sweetened applesauce, top with buttered bread, chill overnight or longer. Serve this tasty dessert with cream, whipped or plain. Children will gladly eat it up.

Louis Diet, Chef des Cuisines, Ritz Carlton Hotel, offers the following apple stuffing for geese, ducks, etc.

Apple Stuffing

Pare and quarter some apples and saute in butter. On the other hand lightly brown a little chopped onion in butter and to this add some fresh bread crumbs; the apples and a pinch each of thyme, chopped parsley and rosemary (if obtainable).

 GIVE LETTERS A ME-TO-YOU WARMTH

DON'T FORGET TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

Cheerful chatty letters—that's Mary's long suit. What a help it's been to her in making and keeping friends.

Yet Mary's no "writer." With a few simple pointers any one could do as well.

There's Dorothy—whose chatty notes bristle with "I did this" and "I did that"—and never a word about you.

Dorothy could get a "me-to-you" warmth in her letters by more "you's," fewer "I's." By keeping your last letter before her as she writes, she wouldn't forget to answer the questions you asked.

And Kay—what pointers does she need to brighten this stiff note: "Just heard of Tom's promotion. I congratulate you!"

Kay has writing stiffness. By writing as she'd talk, she can get sincere enthusiasm in her letters. "Wonderful news about Tom's promotion. The boy is certainly going places."

As for Joan, how you'd hate to have a critical friend see one of her cheap little notes. No "good" over and over again. Grammatical errors—"I wouldn't OP believed it." Ruled stationery.

With a few tips on good letters Joan would stock up on vivid adjectives—delightful, tempestuous, enchanting. She'd watch her English. "I wouldn't HAVE loved." And she'd use unruled stationery.

Your own letters—how can they help in your social and business life? Our 10-page booklet, HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS, gives you rules easy to follow. Sample letters. Etiquette pointers.

All averages were down 1.25 points, to 19.23, low since 1932. Utilities lost 0.78 point, closing at 15.33. New lows for the year were made by 556 issues, as volume of trading reached 1,720,000 shares. There was a heavy shake-out on the Amsterdam bourse, most leading securities closing below the lowest levels of 1937. Paris bourse was depressed, with particularly heavy losses in international.

There was a slump in world silver markets and for the second consecutive day there was a reduction of one cent an ounce in the price posted at which the U. S. would buy foreign silver. Silver markets throughout the world were thrown into confusion by the announcement Monday that the U. S. would suspend silver purchases from Mexico.

The commodity futures index showed a further decline yesterday, to the lowest point since April, 1934. Rubber prices broke around a cent and a half a pound yesterday, closing at about 1 1/2 cents a pound, a drop of three cents since the end of the year, at which time most manufacturers wrote down commitments and inventories to the market level.

On the basis of current stocks of rubber held the value of crude rubber inventories in this country has depreciated approximately $10,000,000 since the first of the year.

President Roosevelt announced that he would send a special message to Congress this session on the railroad situation; asserted that Congress must act on the rail situation.

Pork stored in freezer-locker compartments is at its best when removed and used with three or four months. When held longer the fat flavor tends to become strong. Reports to the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture on storing various meats at low temperatures after sharp freezing indicate that beef, lamb and poultry can be held in excellent condition for six months or longer.

"Redemption" at New Palts Church

Holy Week in New Palts will be ushered in by a performance of Gounod's "Redemption" by the choir of the Dutch Reformed Church at 4 o'clock on Palm Sunday.

The Redemption is a musical exposition of the three facts on which depends the existence of the Christian Church, the passion and death of Jesus, His life from the resurrection to the ascension, and the spread of Christianity through the mission of the Apostles. Gounod wrote the words at Rome in 1857 when he was staying with his painter friend, Hebert. Not until 12 years later was the music completed for a first performance at the festival at Birmingham in 1882. Since then it has been held one of the great masterpieces of church music.

The regular choir will be assisted by the children's chorus of 40 voices. The soloist work will be carried by Mrs. Arthur Kurtz, soprano; John Montague, tenor, of Newburgh, and George Oates, basso, all of whom are well known to local audiences. Mrs. Clinton Seward is the organist. It is hoped that many people will seize this opportunity to hear great music so appropriate to the season.

Powell Suit for Services Settled As Trial Starts

An action brought by Lloyd W. Powell, Kingston attorney, against Zue McClary of Woodstock and New York, to recover for legal services was settled in Supreme Court this morning after it had been partially tried. Mr. Powell sued to recover $185 for services rendered as attorney for Mrs. McClary when he acted as her local attorney in 1929 in bankruptcy court. He testified that he had told her his services would be $250 if the matter was not contested but more if there was a contest by creditors. There was a contest by creditors and he sent her a bill for $500 for services.

On the bill of Mr. Powell $350 had been paid on account and he sought to recover the balance of $150 which included $35 costs. Mr. Powell took the stand in his own behalf and was examined by Mr. McAllister. Mr. Powell testified he had agreed to appear locally for Mrs. McClary and had prepared the required papers, schedules and other papers necessary for the proceeding. At first all of the liabilities were not known to him but he said eventually he found the liabilities were in the sum of $449,882.53 and that included were mortgages on New York hotel property in sums of $165,000 and $124,000. He said these amounts had not at first been set up as he knew nothing of their existence.

Mr. Powell testified to the number of hearings, amount of work done and the number of letters, briefs and other papers which he prepared and he said Mrs. McClary's New York attorney had told him a fee of $500 was very modest for the work done.

Objections to the discharge of the bankrupt by numerous large creditors he said, had kept the case in court for some time before a discharge was finally won. This discharge was won over the objection of counsel for several creditors. The matter was heard locally before the late Amos Van Etten, referee in bankruptcy and also as special master.

Mrs. McClary alleged in her complaint that the charges were excessive and that she had agreed to pay only $250. She also pleaded the statute of limitations claiming that six years have elapsed since the matter arose. She alleged that the delay in securing the discharge in bankruptcy by the bankruptcy court was because of the manner in which the case was presented. She appeared in her own behalf in court and told a jury that she had agreed to pay Mr. Powell $250 for a discharge in bankruptcy but had paid an extra $100 because she knew he had a son who was in an accident about that time and she felt sorry for him.

Mr. Powell testified that after he took the case he found serious objection by creditors to the transfer of a property at Woodstock by Mrs. McClary to her children and also to a transfer of several hundred shares of hotel stock to members of her family. These creditors charged that the transfer was made to defraud the creditors and they brought proceedings to have the transfers voided. Mr. Powell told the court and jury that he had opposed the contention of the creditors and his contention had been upheld by the referee, special master and the court and the discharge in bankruptcy was eventually granted.

After Mr. Powell had been cross examined for a short time by Mrs. McClary Justice Bergan called a recess and during the recess a conference was had and after the case was announced as settled.

Court recessed until 2 o'clock.

Columbus, Kas., March 30 (AP)—A tornado struck the western side of this town of 7,500 shortly before noon today, severely damaging a school building and injuring scores of persons.

The west side school building was filled with children who were preparing to leave for lunch when the storm struck. Columbus is located in the extreme southeastern corner of Kansas near both Missouri and Oklahoma.

The tornado cut through an area of from eight to ten blocks. The roof of the west side Highland School collapsed in the storm while brick and mortar poured through the second floor. Virtually all the windows of the Community High School in which were 750 pupils, were blown out, but it was believed none of the high school pupils was injured.

Lower Grades Safe

The lower grades of the Highland School had been dismissed for noon before the tornado struck, and as some of these have their classrooms on the second floor, this may have saved many lives.

From 30 to 75 beds in the city's two hospitals were rapidly filled with injured. Only one telephone wire was operating out of Columbus and that was taken over by the officials and rescue workers as an emergency line. The storm struck about 11:15.

a C.S.T., the tornado winds being accompanied by a heavy rain and hailstones as large as good sized marbles.

The storm raged with great severity for about 20 minutes. It swept the west and north corners of Columbus, striking from the southwest.

The city waterworks was among the damaged buildings but there was no immediate danger to the water supply.

Philly Hebrew Boss Predicts His Five Will Turn Tables

Crowd Expected

Anxiety of Both Clubs to Win Presses Hard, Fast Game at Auditorium Tonight

This is the night for the Col. Philly Hebrew cage war at the municipal auditorium, which is expected to be well filled with spectators for the battle that promises action galore.

Salient facts about the duel: Starting time, 9:15 sharp. Teams—Colonials vs. Philadelphia.

Lineups:

Colonials: F—Husta, P—Ponack, C—Hearn, G—Dubbler, O—Rabin.

Hebrews: Kaselman, Lautman, Bloom, Gotthoffer, Rosen.

Jackie McGuire will be ready for reserve duty, as will Rip Kapinsky, in case the Colonials need them. Corky Stanton is in spring training for baseball and won't be in the local lineup.

Referee Pat Kennedy, one of the outstanding basketball officials in the east, will handle the whistle.

The odds—There are none on this contest, the sports considering the clubs evenly matched, and both ready to wage a hard fight for the decision.

Eddie Gottlieb thinks he has a real find in Meyer Bloom, Temple's ace center, and expects him to play one of the leading roles in the fight against the Colonials. It's Tiny Hearn's job to stop this speedy youngster, and the old Georgia Tech star is out to do it.

This individual clash between Bloom and Hearn should be one of the highlights of the night, say the moguls of the league.

Another interesting angle to the fight is Manager Dave Bass' prediction that Phil Rabin and Joe Dubbler will repeat their stellar performances. It was this pair that overthrew the Sphas on their last visit here, putting on a hard drive in the closing period to swamp the Phillys 41-29.

"I think this game should be one of the hottest of the season," commented Bass.

"We won't stand for any of those duke turns in this game," said Manager Eddie Gottlieb. "My boys are out to win and I think we'll take the Colonials over this time."

Two Truck Loads Of Rainbow Trout For Ulster Streams

Two trucks loaded with rainbow trout and consigned to the Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association to be released in the Esopus creek, between Boiceville and Phoenicia, arrived in Kingston at the court house today. Several members of the club were present and went with the trucks to release the fish this afternoon.

The fish came from the hatchery at Rome, and were all of legal size, some of them measuring nearly 16 inches in length. This is part of the shipment of 10,000 fish of this species which will be received within the next week or two.

Later in the season the association expects to receive about the same number of brown trout for releasing. These fish are consigned to Esopus creek, Traver Hollow and Watson Hollow streams.

A shipment of quail will also be received today to be released in covers throughout the territory allotted to the association. They will be divided into four lots, some of them will be released in the town of Ulster at Stony Hollow; others on the Malone Lane farm; some on the Silas Elmendorf farm, and the balance in the town of Esopus.

Each of the owners of these farms has agreed to take the birds and will keep a careful check on them in order that the association may be able to report as to whether they nest this year and the number of young birds in each covey. All birds are fully matured and it is expected that much better results will be obtained from them than from the releasing of partly grown birds.

Fred—So you've come back, to the straight and narrow path, have you?

Jack—Yes, the strayin' was too much for me.

Busy Schedule For Armstrong

New York, March 30 (AP)—Henry Armstrong, the dark bit of dynamite who rules the featherweights, takes on Lew Feldman at the Hippodrome tonight in a prelude match to one of the stiffest spring and summer campaigns any boxer ever faced.

After nearly three hours of debate yesterday, the New York State Athletic Commission issued the following schedule for Henry's summer title appearances, all of them in New York.

(1) The negro will meet Barney Ross for the welterweight championship May 26.

(2) If Ross beats Armstrong, he will defend his title against lightweight Champion Lou Ambers July 26 and Armstrong will meet Ambers for the 135-pound title September 14.

(3) Should Armstrong beat Ross on May 26 he will get a shot for his third title against Ambers July 26.

This boils down to the fact that Henry has one of the greatest opportunities in the sporty history of the ring. If he wins all three titles, he will eclipse the deeds of such stalwarts among the little fellows and Joe Gans and Terrible Terry McGovern.

Will Box Thomas Like Schmeling

Chicago, March 30 (AP)—Swing Man Harry Thomas is going to serve as a double for the only man ever to stop him—Max Schmeling—when he faces Champion Joe Louis in a 15 round battle in the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Louis revealed today that he is going to imagine that he is fighting Schmeling, so that he can prove a few things to himself and correct mistakes he made when the German knocked him out in 11 rounds two years ago. This will be his last engagement before a return match with Schmeling somewhere in these United States next June 22.

Stone Ridge Closes With a Victory

Stone Ridge Grange basketball team won its final game of the season, defeating the Kingston K. & M. quintet, 37-22, last week at the Grange Hall. The Neffs, Charlie and Frank, did the best shooting for the winners with 15 and 12 points respectively.

Presidents as Senators

Seven men who later became Presidents of the United States resigned from the senate for various reasons. John Quincy Adams resigned on June 8, 1808. He had been appointed to the chair of rhetoric and oratory at Harvard college in 1806. Andrew Jackson resigned from the senate in 1798 to become a Tennessee Supreme court judge. Martin Van Buren resigned in 1828 to become governor of New York, while William Henry Harrison left the senate in 1828, after three years, to become minister to Colombia. South America. John Tyler resigned in 1836 after refusing to obey a resolution of the Virginia legislature; it demanded that he vote for the Bendish resolution, which sought to exchange resolutions censuring President Jackson for removal of bank deposits. Franklin Pierce resigned in 1842 to enter private law practice in Concord, N. H. Warren G. Harding resigned from the senate in January, 1921, two months before his inauguration.

SCIENTISTS TIME LIGHTNING'S SPEED

Use World's Tallest Building in Making Tests.

New York—Lightning's speed has been measured by scientists at 10,000 miles a second. They used the world's tallest building for a lightning rod, the 1,250-foot Empire State building in this city.

This structure is struck by bolts from the clouds more frequently than any other known place on earth, according to Karl B. McEachron, director of the lightning laboratory of the General Electric company.

It acts like a needle to draw electricity. A motion picture camera, on top of a skyscraper half a mile from the Empire State, has caught every flash for three years.

New facts have been discovered. The most interesting, Mr. McEachron said, is that a tall building uses a tongue of fire to wheedle lightning. Frequently before lightning hits the Empire State a spindling flame leaps upward from the top of its tower, almost a quarter of a mile up.

The flame does not go all the way to the clouds. It reaches like a snake striking at something far beyond its length. It guides the lightning that always follows, crashing down the tower.

The scientific importance of this, said Mr. McEachron, is to prove that the shape of an object on earth will often decide the direction of the initial lightning stroke. Lightning usually strikes downward. A cloud starts it. But the Empire State building many times pops at the clouds.

The camera settled a long controversy. The dispute was about which direction lightning branches, up or down. Pictures showed both directions. The Empire State evidence shows that the branches will go in the direction of the original stroke.

This original stroke is not seen by the human eye. It is a series of lance-shaped flashes, each about 200 feet long. These, one after the other, seem to drill a path in the air for the main stroke of fire. Each lance proceeds a little farther than the one before.

Often, McEachron asserted, there may be 30 of these lances before a flash. Occasionally they take a hundredth of a second to build the pathway. They can start either from earth or from the sky.

They explained, McEachron said, the ripping sound in a thunder clap.

Maple Leafs Look Like Champions

New York, March 30 (AP)—Although there may be dissenting votes from supporters of the New York Americans and Chicago Blackhawks, Toronto's Maple Leafs have established themselves as the team to beat in the 1938 Stanley Cup, ancient emblem of professional hockey supremacy.

The Leafs, who led the National League's International Division through the regular season largely because they could score faster and more often than their rivals, stamped themselves as a really great team by winning the league title from the favored Boston Bruins in three straight games.

They completed their triumph at Boston last night when Gordie Drillon, champion goal-getter of the season, banged home a tally after ten minutes of overtime play to win the third game 3 to 2.

The amazing Americans, still refusing to admit they're too old and creaky to win the trophy, bowed over the Blackhawks 3 to 1 in the first game of their "semi-final" series, but the odds still are against them. They must win another game, either at Chicago tomorrow or at New York Sunday, and the Leafs have a chance to rest while that is going on.

Comforter Softballers Will Organize Friday

The Comforter softball team, champions of the Church Softball League last year, will organize Friday evening, April 1, in the basement of the church at 7:30 o'clock.

Members of last year's team as well as others who would like to play with the Comforters this year, are requested to be present at the Friday evening meeting or notify the Rev. C. P. Mayskens as to their intention to play.

The meeting will be for the purpose of electing a captain and making arrangements for practice sessions. The rules of the league this year specify that no games shall be postponed for any reason except rain, so it will be necessary to have more players listed on the roster.

Jersey City, N. J.—Lou Lombardi, 135, Jersey City, outpointed Frank Velez, 110, Puerto Rico, (8).

Kingston High School Baseball Squad Is Cut to 29 Candidates

Coach Cliff Miller made another cut in the Kingston High School baseball squad after Tuesday's practice at the Athletic Field, leaving 29 candidates for varsity positions. One more slash will be made he indicated.

The list of diamond candidates is made up of Vince Stoll, Jimmy Ashdown, George Colby, Jack Halstein, George McLane, Al Decker, Tony Rua, Ray Schneider, Ray Lindhurst, George Culchey, Earl Sleight, Hank Tiano, Joe Benjamin, Tony Berniato, Gus Brinnier, Francis Couchlin, Frank Dohle, Bill Gavis, Harry Leus, Harry Zellmer, Bill Ashdown, John Berardi, Bob Halestin, Harry Mickle, Joe Ryndak, Al Hasbrueck, Don Shader, Lou Albright, and Bill Windrum.

Prior to the practice, uniforms were given to Tony Rua, Al Decker, Ray Lindhurst and Ray Schneider. These cuts were made in addition to the ones given Monday. Incidentally the uniforms are different this season, having Kingston written across the shirt fronts instead of a large K.

St. Louis Browns Have Strong Opening Lineup—on Paper

Injury Jinx Is Hard in Training

Chicago, March 30 (AP)—Baseball's biggest bogeyman, the injury jinx, is on the prowl—ahead of schedule.

This season's spring training grounds already finds two clubs badly crippled by training accidents.

Manager Jimmy Dykes, of the Chicago White Sox, can't be blamed for worrying. When Luke Appling suffered a fractured leg last Sunday sliding into second base, Dykes lost the services of his cleanup batsman and one of the best shortstops in the business. Appling will be out of action at least six weeks.

In the same game, Monty Stratton, of the Sox, injured an arm and the Sox pitching arm probably won't be able to uncork his last one for two or more weeks.

Down in Florida, the jinx which has pursued Detroit for several seasons apparently still is trailing the Tigers. Manager Mickey Cochrane, just ready to give up hope that Schoolboy Rowe's arm will do the cause any good, had begun to build his pitching staff around slender, efficient Tommy Bridges.

Then Tommy aggravated an old injury to his salary finger and probably won't be able to work until May 15.

Kyanize Team Tells Its lineup

Jackie Dawkins of the Kyanize baseball team announces his lineup for the coming season. It is as follows:

Eddie Murphy and Bob Bush, pitchers; Joe Messenger and Eugene Rider, catchers.

The rest of the list:

Ring Van Elten, Tommy Lamb, Bob Seckler, Al Stum, Andy Dykes, Tony Dobosky, Pres Knight, Speed Scherer and Don Laubach.

Baseball Training Camps Preview

(By The Associated Press)

Clearwater, Fla.—It may or may not be the result of Larry MacPhail's bonus system, but the Brooklyn Dodgers are doing some smart fishing. The infield pulled three double plays against Detroit yesterday and that used to be "par" for a long road trip.

Tampa, Fla.—Although Ray (Peaches) Davis has not had much on the ball in training, Manager Bill McKernan of the Cincinnati Reds declared he can "help us more than most people think." Deacon Bell further explained, "If he shows just a little improvement over last season, he'll prove a big help to our pitching staff."

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Manager Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis Cardinals seems to like the work of Don Guttridge at shortstop. "Butteridge has been erratic," Frisch said, "but he'll continue there."

Baton Rouge, La.—Bill Terry's answer to recent criticisms of National League baseball was two hours of "skull" practice for New York Giants. "That's my answer," he said, adding, "a man who can bust up a ball game with a hit is a great asset, but he is worth twice as much if he also can save a game by being a fine defensive player."

Clearwater, Fla.—The New York Yankees are expecting a lot from Ivy Paul Andrews, if he continues his good finding in the exhibition games between here and New York. Joe McCarthy says he looks for Andrews to do a lot of first-class relief work.

Bradenton, Fla.—Johnny Niggeling, 21-year-old rookie hurler of the Boston Bees, is threatening to achieve the same fame won by last year's young oldsters, Lou Fette and Jim Turner. Johnny, up from Newark, hurled six shut-out innings against Louisville yesterday.

San Antonio, Tex.—Tom Carey, St. Louis Browns infielder, was ready to join the Hollywood Pacific Coast League Club today. Carey had balked at being optioned to the California Club but decided, "as long as I don't lose any money I might just as well go."

Biloxi, Miss.—Johnny Humphries, Cleveland Indians' rookie pitcher, has made quite an impression on at least one rival manager. Connie Mack of the Athletics watched him hurl against the Phillies yesterday and said he is "a sensation on form alone."

New York—Eddie Frank, 138-11, Scranton, Pa., outpointed Al Roth, 139, New York, (10).

Ballston Scrapper Late for Title Try Anxious for Battle

Treat for Fans

Frankie Thompson Out to Prove He Can Beat Spidaro and Is the Uncrowned Champ

That the five rounder between George Spidaro and Frankie Thompson on Friday night's boxing card at the municipal auditorium will be what the fight fans call a "honey" is indicated by an incident that happened during the Diamond Gloves tournament in Albany.

Thompson, dashing into the dressing room late for the weigh-in, was ruled out of the tournament. He tossed his luggage on the floor and almost cried. If it were not for the crowd around, he probably would have.

"Think of it," said the Ballston Lake brawler in a sad tone. "I've been fighting hard all year, taking on all comers, just to get a rep for this tournament and now I'm ruled out just because I'm five minutes late."

Spidaro had just weighed-in and was donning his fight togs.

"Just as well you're not boxing," said George jokingly, "because you'd only have to meet me for the championship, and I'm in the best shape of my life."

Thompson grinned, but considered the remark a dig concerning his inability.

Spidaro did win the welterweight title, outpointing Frankie Emerson of St. Remy for the coveted golden glove, studded with a diamond.

As Thompson looked on, watching Emerson make a gallant attempt to win the title, he could hardly sit still. He yelled instructions to Frankie, but his voice was drowned out by the cheers of the crowd, who regarded the battle one of the highlights of the tournament.

After Spidaro left the ring, Thompson went to Ben M. Berkner of the Adirondack A. A. 17, and asked that he be given a shot at the Albany welter champion just to satisfy himself that he's really the uncrowned champ of the upstate region.

"I think I can beat Spidaro," he opined.

Berkner immediately shifted the match to Kingston, and local fans of Atlanta will have the opportunity of seeing a boy put up the "scrap of his career" just to prove that ill luck did him out of a title he deserves.

Frankie Emerson is on the same card, being matched with Eddie Seale in that return match for five rounds, to give the Poughkeepsie Wildman a chance to prove his superiority.

Seale lost to Emerson in their other setto on a technical knock-out, the referee stopping the bout on account of Eddie's cut eye.

Scout Council Plans for Camp

The Camp committee of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, has recently let out plans for the summer and indicates that the camp will enjoy the largest attendance and one of the finest programs of activity in its history.

The committee is busy at work now employing the staff and securing new equipment to meet the needs of the growth that the organization is having throughout the two counties. The additional equipment includes new tents, board floor for some of the tents, boats, etc.

Fred Van Voorhis, chairman of the Camp committee, announced that the camp staff has been partially secured and he expects to have it complete by the middle of April. Mr. Van Voorhis also said the complete plans for the summer have been prepared with camp opening on July 19 and operating until August 6.

Opportunity is to be made for those coming with their own leadership to have a lower rate of cost than those troops who come without their leaders.

Plans are also being made to have several outstanding celebrations at the camp including Fathers' Day, Mothers' Day, a combined meeting of all Scouts of the area, etc. Further that provisions will be made for week-end and over-night groups who come to join in the camp program.

In connection with the preparation for camp plans are being made to have a meeting of all Scoutmasters and committeemen the latter part of April at which time the camp plans will be completely announced and special movies will be presented showing how troops may go about preparing for their camp including the securing and making of equipment, etc. This date will be announced.

nounced very shortly, Mr. Van Voorhis said.

Plans for the second annual Camporee for all scouts of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, is progressing and this week all units are being mailed detailed outlines and programs.

The advance information received at the council office would indicate that the number this year will be much greater than that of last year.

This annual affair takes place on the State Armory grounds in Kingston on June 3, 4 and 5.

The spring meeting of the members of the Ulster-Greene Council is scheduled to take place on Wednesday evening, April 12. Notices will be mailed shortly to all officials of the council notifying them of this meeting and informing them of the nature of the business of the evening.

Members of the various district committees and the executive board of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, are making plans to take part in the annual Regional Conference which takes place in the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark, N. J., on Friday, April 22. Information is being sent to all officials and it is expected that the Ulster-Greene Council will have a good delegation at this one-day affair.

down many Curtiss and Rata types in Spanish skies."

After outlining the fleet Italy soon would have afloat, Il Duce asserted:

"I confirm to the Senate that Italy has in most powerful submarine fleet in the world. We have outdistanced all in a manner it will be difficult, if not impossible, to catch up with us and dislodge us from this position."

Martial Spirit Dominant

The martial spirit was dominant in Italy today as the nation awaited Premier Mussolini's report on the state of Fascism's armed forces.

Anti-aircraft reserves were dispatched to strategic centers throughout the country, and Fascists interpreted the display as a warning to France which has been the principal target of Italian indignation in the past two weeks.

A nation-wide broadcast was arranged for Mussolini's speech to the Senate after discussion by Senate members who affirmed the need of Italy's being ever stronger, especially in aviation.

Glowing press reports of Italian legionnaires' part in the Spanish insurgent offensive in Catalonia intensified the feeling of national pride in the prowess of Fascist arms.

Italy's present resentment toward France concerns the mysterious flight of a French warplane over Italian territory last week. An inquiry is underway to determine the flight's purpose.

STREET SCENE IN BOMBED BARCELONA

Framed by pillars of a building which escaped destruction by insurgent air raiders, this scene shows a section of once peaceful Barcelona, Spain, loyalist capital. The wrecked street car and shattered tree bear witness to the intensity of the attack, which killed hundreds of civilians.

Four Cases Before Judge Cahill Here

Four cases were brought to the attention of Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court this morning.

Francis E. Eighmey of Brooklyn, arrested for public intoxication on North Front street was fined $5, while Ephraim Decker of Sleightsburgh was sentenced to seven days in jail in order to get straightened out.

Decker was arrested for public intoxication on Main street.

Dorothy Hahn, a white woman of 253 East Strand, and William Moulton, a negro of Canal street, who were arrested on the complaint of John Ford, a negro, who charged them with assault in the third degree, were discharged when Ford failed to appear to press the charge this morning.

Men's Club Will Install Officers

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church on Friday evening will install its recently elected officers, and following the business meeting at 7:45 o'clock a program of magic will be given by Fred L. Van Deusen, well known local magician.

The officers to be installed are: President, A. Foster Winfield; vice president, Chester A. Baltz, Jr.; secretary, Earl Tongue, and treasurer, Fred P. Carpenter.

Following the entertainment a social hour will be enjoyed and refreshments served.

attractive backgrounds and display material.

Several of the store windows were already hidden by drapes this morning as preparations were under way to arrange the displays which had been planned.

As a matter of fact one of the Flanagan's windows has been curtained off for several days and an air of mystery surrounds the store as people have stopped to inquire just what was going on.

A Freeman reporter joined the questioners this morning and succeeded in finding out that the display was being arranged by Paul Purcell—and that Paul was "down in the cellar."

That gives an idea of just how "cagy" some of these merchants are acting these days. Incidentally one of Paul's windows won the prize in Newburgh a few days since, so chances are that this display will be worth looking at when the signal is given to unveil the windows at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

Among Leaders.

Another window that was curtained off this morning was that of the L. S. Winne Co. Their display last year was one of the most original ones shown and presumably they will be right up among the leaders Thursday night.

Other merchants were starting this morning to clear their windows and get things in readiness for the installation of the displays later. The stores will not be open for business Thursday night, it having been found two years ago that the people were interested in touring the business district, looking at the various displays and forming an opinion as to which ones should be awarded the prizes, that they would not take the time to do more than "window shopping."

As has been announced the display will be preceded by a parade by the American Legion Drum Corps, which will also put on a drill. The radio car will tour the streets Thursday afternoon for a last minute announcement of the Spring Opening and at night the names of the winning stores will be broadcast.

Judges for the contest will be Sam Stern, Kingston optician, Architect Albert Milliken and Mrs. Naomi Hoderath, art instructor at the Kingston High School.

In case of rain the display will be postponed to Friday night, President Rowe said this morning.

No Honeymoon

Hollywood, March 30 (AP)—There was no honeymoon today for Vera Reynolds, former wampus baby star, and Robert Ellis Reel, who writes screen stories. The couple were married in Palm Springs, last night. The ceremony was one of the conditions under which Miss Reynolds dropped her $150,000 breach of promise suit against Reel. Miss Reynolds and Reel refused to say whether they would live together.
